

@MODERNDAY_LEONIDAS · THE SUPPLEMENT STACK · PART 1 OF 3

WHAT I'D TAKE IF I STARTED OVER

Three supplements. That's it. Don't be a bitch about protein — eat some meat.

LEONIDAS

WHAT I'D TAKE IF I STARTED OVER

THE THREE SUPPLEMENTS THAT ACTUALLY WORK

PROTEIN ISN'T ON THIS LIST. DON'T BE A BITCH. EAT MEAT. MOVE ON.

I didn't know what protein powder was when I bench pressed 300 lbs at 17. You don't need an $80 tub of whey to get strong. You need food. You need consistency. You need a few specific compounds that actually move the needle.

If I had to start over today — zero supplement knowledge, zero brand loyalty — I'd take three things. That's it. Not six. Not twelve. Three. Here they are.

01

CREATINE MONOHYDRATE

What it does: The most-studied supplement in sports science. Increases ATP regeneration in muscle cells.

Translation: you get one or two more reps before failure. Over months, that compounds into real strength gains.

Dosing: 5 grams per day. Every day. No loading phase needed if you're consistent — your levels saturate in 3–4 weeks either way.

When to take: Doesn't matter. Morning shake, post-workout, before bed. Pick a time you'll actually remember. The timing is bullshit — the consistency is what matters.

Why it's on the list: It works. Cheapest investment in the gym — about $15/month for the powder, no flavoring needed (mix it into water, coffee, whatever). Skip the "creatine HCL" and "Kre-Alkalyn" marketing scams. Monohydrate is the gold standard. The studies aren't ambiguous.

02

TONGKAT ALI

What it does: Herbal extract that supports natural testosterone production by reducing SHBG — the protein that binds and inactivates free testosterone. It doesn't inject testosterone into you. It helps your body use more of what you're already making.

Dosing: 200–400 mg per day of a standardized extract. Look for "Eurycoma longifolia" on the label, ideally a 100:1 or 200:1 concentration.

When to take: Morning, with food. Some guys get a slight energy bump from it — take it too late and it'll mess with your sleep.

Why it's on the list: Most "natural T booster" supplements are garbage. Tongkat Ali has actual clinical research behind it — multiple double-blind studies show measurable T improvements in men with low-to-normal levels. It's not magic. You're not turning into Arnold. But if you're 25–45 and your T is sliding, this is the one compound worth running.

NOT FOR GUYS UNDER 21

Your hormones are still calibrating. Leave it alone.

03

VITAMIN D3

What it does: Hormone precursor (yes, "vitamin" D is actually a hormone). Supports testosterone, immune function, bone density, mood, and sleep quality. If you work indoors and don't see the sun, you're almost certainly low. Most American men test below the optimal range.

Dosing: 2,000–5,000 IU per day. Take with a fat-containing meal (eggs, avocado, steak) — D3 is fat-soluble. Without fat, you absorb almost nothing.

When to take: Morning, with breakfast. Avoid taking it late at night — for some people it can interfere with melatonin.

Why it's on the list: Foundational. Almost nothing else works right when your D3 is low. Cheapest fix for the broadest set of problems — about $5–10 for a 3-month supply.

PRO TIP — TEST, DON'T GUESS

Get your levels checked on a blood panel. Standard labs call anything above ~30 ng/mL "sufficient." A lot of lifters aim higher — the ~50–70 ng/mL range — as an optimization target, not a medical mandate (and more isn't better past that; very high levels carry their own risks). If you're testing in the low 20s or below, you're not optimizing — you're running on empty. Talk to your doctor about dosing to hit your target.

THE EXACT STACK

COMPOUND	DOSE	TIMING	COST/MO
Creatine Monohydrate	5 g	Anytime, daily	~$15
Tongkat Ali (200:1 extract)	200–400 mg	Morning, with food	~$30–50
Vitamin D3	2,000–5,000 IU	Morning, with fat	~$5
Total	3 compounds		~$50–70/mo

That's it. Three compounds. About $50–70/month for a stack that actually moves the needle. You'll see results in 60–90 days if you're consistent. Not two weeks. Stop being impatient.

Disclaimer. This is what I take — not medical advice. Consult a doctor before starting any supplement, especially if you have an existing condition or take prescription medications. Tongkat Ali is not recommended for men under 21.

WANT THE REST OF WHAT I KNOW?

Training. Nutrition. Peptides. The Bundle is at leonidaslifts.com.

— LEONIDAS